By Peter McKone
When you answer 1.d4 with 1...d5 or with 1...Nf6, you are prepared for White's main lines, and for the Colle and BDG, and Reverse Stonewall, and whatever other lines your opponents have tried. But are there other surprises lurking out there, that will put you out of book on move three? Time on the clock can be a substitute for a small material advantage. You'll feel more comfortable after reading Cox' book, and verifying that you have at least some preparations for all of White's off-beat variations. Even if you choose your own lines (or maybe Kaufman's or Avrukh's), at least you know there won't be any surprises. A small warning. My computer found an opening that Cox didn't cover: 1.d4 d5 2.Nc3 Nf6 3.Bf4. It doesn't just lose.

By Darwin J. Evans
This book offers many lines on dealing with an opponents Queen pawn openings. Especially interesting to me is vs Blackmar-Diemer and the Trompowsky. As I said on an earlier review my opening repertoire has many holes in it (My peak USCF was 1800) and this book fills the holes in nicely. Even lines vs the what was called Old Catalan (1.d4 2.Nf3 3.g3) are given In the Colle he gives the QID which is what Rudel gives in his books as the best defense vs the Colle. Overall a great book for what to do vs Qp openings in one place.

This book fills an enormous void in chess literature. There are a countless number of players who are very happy to defend the black side of the Queen's Gambit or play the Nimzo-Indian, Queen's Indian, Bogo-Indian, or Benoni. However, more often than not they have been forced to muddle their way through a whole variety of annoying sidelines White has at his or her disposal, including the dreaded Trompowsky, the tricky Blackmar-Diemer Gambit and the tiresome Colle Variation. Now finally, help is at hand! In this unique book John Cox reveals everything Black players need to know about all of White's offbeat tries, presenting Black with no-nonsense answers to every white option. Readers will be fully armed to deal with anything that White can throw at them. In fact, they will have all the White players running back to the main lines!
