From Victoria Albert Museum : Diaghilev and the Golden Age of the Ballets Russes 1909-1929 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Diaghilev and the Golden Age of the Ballets Russes 1909-1929:

While the early 20th century was rich with creative energy, no one brought theater and dance to the forefront of culture quite like Sergei Diaghilev did with his extraordinary Ballets Russes. From 1909 to 1929, the impresario attracted the involvement of artists and designers (Picasso, Matisse, Chanel), composers (Stravinsky),

About the Author Jane Pritchard is curator of dance at the VA.
