This game reinforces their note value and rhythm lessons and has been great fun for all. For my younger children, we play without the 6/8 time cards, but the older children like the challenge. This product will last well beyond the age of learning about note values as it's an all-around fun card game to play. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Fun Learning! By J. Burnett I gave this game to a pack of boys, ages 10-13, all young musicians at music camp. While I worked with string sectional, I loved hearing the boys outside yelling, "No! Dude! Ya gotta have four beats..." while they learned time signatures and counted rhythms. The boys asked for this game EVERY day for the next 2 weeks. I'm ordering more for my string classes throughout the year. 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. interesting, satisfying game

I am always on the lookout for music games that I can play with my piano students during lessons. This one has been a big hit. Each player is dealt several cards, some of which are time signatures and some of which are notes or rests. During your turn, you try to make up a measure using the cards in your hand (first, a time signature to set the parameter, and then notes and/or rests to fill that many beats). I must admit to simplifying the rules and using all note value cards in any time signature (as opposed to suits of different time signatures), but my students pick up the concept quickly and feel proud of themselves. Highly recommended.
