A Lovely Addition to my Morning Ritual By Matthew Boehm As a fan of puzzles, being presented with one every morning helps to get my brain working and start my day on a positive note. I personally would prefer if there were more puzzles involving logic and less word puzzles, but the word-based puzzles are still fun for the most part. Here's a rough breakdown of the categories of puzzles I've gotten so far. Numbers may be off by a few, but it should give a basic idea: 9 Logic / Critical Thinking: In most of these, you're given a set of elements and series of rules and have to find an arrangement of the elements that satisfy the rules. 40 Word-Based: These puzzles take many forms, but usually involve filling in the blanks, rearranging letters, or placing letters in a grid to form words. 11 Trivia: These puzzles require knowledge of trivia to solve, but may also be word-based. They usually involve crossword-style clues, but may involve rearranging scrambled words or ensuring that all answers have some trait (i.e. all containing certain letters) 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A year's worth of fun By rude dog Actually, more than a year's worth of fun, as I haven't finished the 2010 calendar yet! Became hooked at my daughter's house after birth of grandchild and some down time for both of us--competition developed, with a plus or minus, followed by initials marked on page as completed, for each of us in the household; so received one the next year as a gift. Now I have given one twice to people I know have some time on their hands and need something to occupy their minds. Good mix of puzzles, verbal or math strengths are challenged, logic demanded, and a good stretch for your mind. 5 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Hubbie's Favorite By LFPI buy this as a gift for my husband every Christmas. He absolutely loves this calendar. He thoroughly enjoys all the 'brain' puzzles. It nice that you can give someone a gift that lasts the whole year through. And of course it is always so easy to purchase from - timely service every time. Thank You - continue to do what you do!!!

How brawny is your brain? Sanctioned by Mensa, the internationally famous high-IQ society, Mensa 365 Brain Puzzlers is the calendar with hundreds of word and number puzzles that are guaranteed to make your neurons sweat. Every day brings a new challenge. Four of a Kind. Palindromes. Odd Man Out. And: Patti starts to correct a pile of 163 multiple-choice tests at a rate of four per minute. Five minutes later Sandy joins her, and corrects tests at a rate of seven per minute. When they are finished correcting the entire pile, how many papers has each corrected? Answers are on the reverse side of each page just in case you're having an off day.
