However, when he read it to me I was somewhat disappointed. There wasn't a very good use of space, as the jokes/puns only usually took up less than five percent of one side of a page..and the rest was blank. This made me feel like I was tricked into buying my son a pamphlet, made to look like a book. My main concern with this book, though, was the inappropriate material that would occasionally pop up throughout the book, mostly innuendos and swear words. I am unaware of whether or not there was a explicit warning label on your website to make parents aware that some of the humor within was targeted for adults, as I didn't see any kind of label before I purchased this 'book' for my nine year old son. It may benifit parents in the future, if such a label actually existed. Mahalo Nui Loa, Rachel
